To our valued installer partners,

The Enphase Installer Network has been pivotal to our support of installers since 2020, when we launched the network in the United States. Today, over 1,600 installer partners in 10 countries are delivering exceptional homeowner experiences with Enphase products.

Our core strategy is to build best-in-class home energy systems and deliver them through our trusted Enphase Installer Network (EIN) partners. As an EIN partner, you receive a range of benefits from our suite of digital tools, as well as endorsements, PR, and our seal of approval to help you sell and install more systems—and grow your business accordingly.

To help maximize the network's potential for both of us, please ensure that your company information is up to date in the Account tab of the Enphase Installer Portal, including your company profile, service areas, lead preferences, and indicative pricing. Keeping these details current helps us provide accurate information to homeowner leads.

We're committed to EIN for the long haul, and we expect the network and its benefits to further evolve over time. With your feedback, that evolution will be even faster. We truly appreciate your participation, and look forward to working with you even more closely in the years to come.

All the Best,
