

How do I transfer ownership of an Enphase system?

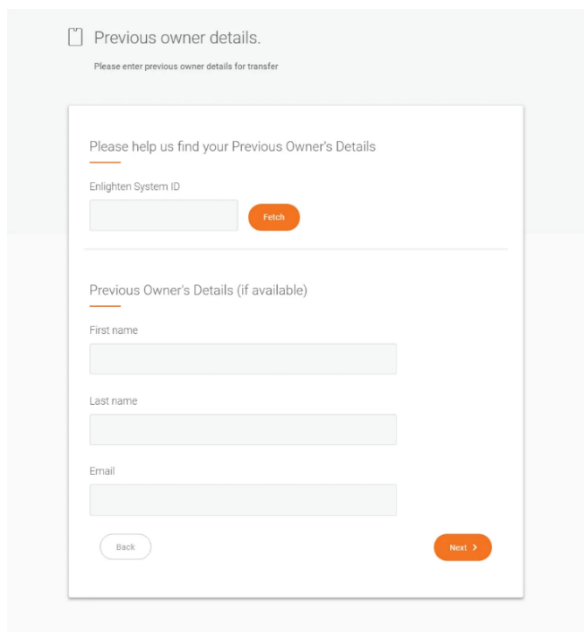

Follow these steps to transfer ownership of an Enphase system.

If you have recently purchased a house or building with an Enphase system and would like to gain ownership of the system, please click this link to initiate the change of ownership process. You will be prompted to create an Enphase account if you do not have one already. (When prompted to create your account, select Other on the New User Registration page.)

Once logged in you will be asked to complete the Transfer of Ownership form and pay a fee of US $199.

Homeowner transfer will transfer the product warranty to you, as well as give you access to the system's account in Enphase App, the software that monitors the production and health of the system. Whereas, the Inspection Report provides insights into the health of your installed solar energy system and identifies issues that may need attention.

To request the Continuation of Coverage, please complete the transaction within 30 days of completing the change of ownership process.
