

How do I transfer ownership of an Enphase system?

Follow these steps to transfer ownership of an Enphase system.

If you have recently purchased a house or building with an Enphase system and would like to gain ownership of the system, please click this link to initiate the change of ownership process. You will be prompted to create an Enphase App account if you don't already have one. (When creating your account, select "Other" in the New User Registration form.)

Once logged in you will be asked to complete the Transfer of Ownership form and pay a fee of US $199.

Transferring home ownership transfers the product warranty to you and gives you access to the system account in Enphase App, the software that monitors the production and health of the system..

After submitting a change of ownership request, the homeowner will receive an email receipt confirming the payment. Processing of the ownership request typically takes 48 hours. Upon completion, the new homeowner will receive a confirmation email and a separate email to access the site details.
